

Title: Proclamation of 1763

Event Date: 1763

Created By: Mr. Gitlin

Image of the Event:

An Article about the event that led to the war:

The Proclamation of 1763 has prevented us from moving west and forced the farmers already on the land to move back to the settled colonies. This is all because of King George and Pontiac (Native American Chief.) Pontiac has been taking over many of our forts in the west and killing many of the soldiers posted in them. King George has refused to send more troops to help out. Now the farmers who have made a life in the area have to return home because it is unsafe. Many of the farmers feel this unfair and are refusing to move, which has caused even more fighting with the Natives. It has been said that the king will arrest any British citizen who does not move back east behind the proclamation line.

Caption for the image:

BRITISH UNFAIR! FORCED RELOCATION OF SETTLERS!

An editorial that promotes one point of view (either the Loyalist or Patriot point of view) and why readers should choose that side, or a neutral point of view announcing details of an event.

King George is being unreasonable with his demands restrict settlement to the east of the mountains. It is unfair that we cannot live where we want to. The King is thousands of miles away, how can he tell us this. He has never even seen the colonies. A government should not be able to give orders when they refuse to send help when we are attacked. I say if we want to live in the west then we should be able to defend ourselves as we see fit. If the Natives don't like it then so be it.