

Resources and Artifacts Analysis A

What can resources and artifacts reveal about a region? Authentic resources and artifacts can help us, as archaeologists, obtain a deeper understanding of a specific historical time period. The resources and artifacts listed below are from the first peoples to inhabit North America and would have been used by culture groups living in a specific region of what is now the United States. You will be using your archaeological skills to analyze and interpret each resource/artifact in order to effectively identify the region in which the tribe lived.

	What is it? How was it used? Describe the purpose or function of the resource/artifact.	What is this resource/artifact made out of? OR What could be made out of this resource/artifact?	What can this resource/artifact tell us about the life and times of the people who used it?	How does this resource/artifact connect to the text excerpt?
